Theatre Communications Group Announces Launch of Blue Star Theatres Program for Military Families: Senator Jack Reed and NEA Chairman Rocco Landesman to Lead Announcement Event

New York, NY – Theatre Communications Group (TCG), the national organization for theatre, is pleased to announce the launch of the Blue Star Theatres program. In partnership with Blue Star Families and with support from MetLife Foundation, the Blue Star Theatres program will connect a variety of theatre offerings to military personnel and their families across the United States. This initiative recognizes the profound contributions of service families and seeks to build stronger connections between theatres, military families and their communities.

On Friday, September 28, a press conference will be held from 1:45–2:15pm at Trinity Repertory Company in Providence, RI, to launch the Blue Star Theatres program. This event will feature Teresa Eyring, executive director, TCG; Michael Gennaro, executive director, Trinity Repertory Company; Rocco Landesman, chairman, National Endowment for the Arts; The Adjutant General of Rhode Island, Major General Kevin McBride; Senator Jack Reed (D-RI); Mark Smith, executive director, Blue Star Families; Dennis White, president and CEO, MetLife Foundation; and Michelle Faulkner, Surface Warfare Officers School Command (SWOS) Ombudsman, Naval Station Newport.

Blue Star Theatres will build on the work already occurring at many theatres nationwide, including: playwriting classes to empower creative expression for veterans; community discussions on plays whose themes resonate with military families; free or discounted ticket programs; job postings and casting notices on military bases; and much more. TCG and Blue Star Families will connect theatres with local bases, and develop and disseminate best-practices for engaging with deployed personnel, veterans and service families.

"Theatre has the power to deepen communal connection and inspire creative expression," said Teresa Eyring, executive director, TCG. "It can provide an invaluable means of integrating military families into our communities, while helping us process the consequences of these long years of war."

"Thanks to the generous support of the MetLife Foundation, and the contributions of TCG and theatres across the county, military families will now have another way to enjoy time together through the arts in their communities," said Blue Star Families executive director, Mark Smith. "TCG and participating theatres have gone above and beyond to offer interactive experiences for service members and their families, creating truly enriching opportunities."

"MetLife Foundation is proud to expand our partnership with Blue Star Families and support the launch of the Blue Star Theatres program," said Dennis White, president and CEO, MetLife Foundation. "Opening doors to theatres across the country is a wonderful way for members of our military and their families to share time together and experience the arts in their communities. The Blue Star Theatres program is also a way for MetLife Foundation to say ‘thank you’ to our servicemen and women."

"Three years ago, the National Endowments for the Arts partnered with Blue Star Families to launch Blue Star Museums," said NEA Chairman Rocco Landesman. "We are thrilled that TCG and the theatre community have also been inspired to work with Blue Star Families in order to answer the First Lady and Dr. Biden's call to help give our service members and their families the opportunities and support they have earned.

"I salute the NEA, Blue Star Families, TCG and participating theatres around the country for putting military families center stage and spearheading this new program," said Senator Jack Reed, a former Army Ranger and Chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on the Interior, which oversees federal funding for the arts. "Building off the success of the Blue Star Museums program, this initiative will help provide valuable educational and cultural opportunities for our service members and their families. The Blue Star Theatres program is a natural extension of the Obama Administration's Joining Forces program, which focuses on helping military families with initiatives like hiring more military spouses and enhancing academic opportunities for students in military families. These types of programs remind our troops and their families how much we value and appreciate their service to our nation."
