Indigenous Direction Bio

Indigenous Direction is a US-based consulting company for organizations and artists who want to create accurate work about, for, and with Indigenous peoples. We are artists who use Indigenous cultural protocols and ways of looking at the world to guide theater and film making/writing. We facilitate equitable connections between clients and Indigenous communities and advise in program development to build bridges between organizations and Indigenous artists. As a team of Indigenous people who have been doing this work for years, we bring a sensitivity to different theatrical forms that have existed on this continent for centuries. We assist with research, tribal connections, and cultural training and offer artistic workshops open to Indigenous theater artists and their allies.
